

Instructions

1. Use this material after a lesson on photography, global issues, human rights, etc.
2. Hand out the Student's Sheets and explain the Ss that they will see 10 iconic photographs. They will find vocabulary in the handout that can be associated with the pictures. This serves as a warm up, and help in case they don't know anything about the pictures. Pull up the pictures on the interactive whiteboard, or any equipment that you use. Show them each picture for approx. 30 seconds. In this phase do not let the Ss talk or share any knowledge they might have.
3. After they finish, show them the pictures again, this time a bit longer. Tell them to write anything they know, or can guess about the pictures.
4. Discuss.

Answer Key

1. The 1968 Olympics Human Rights Salute was a political demonstration conducted by African-American athletes Tommie Smith and John Carlos during their medal ceremony on October 16, 1968 at the 1968 Summer Olympics in the Olympic Stadium in Mexico City. During the ceremony they turned on the podium to face their flags, and to hear the American national anthem. Each athlete raised a black-gloved fist, and kept them raised until the anthem had finished. In addition, Smith, Carlos, and Australian silver medalist Peter Norman all wore human rights badges on their jackets.
